Last Meeting - December 10, 2009: Mountain View 32 Rincon/University 61

MT VIEW MOUNTAIN LIONS (10-9)
Vs.
RINCON/UNIVERSITY RANGERS (12-9)

Tonight's Matchup:

While Tucson High still has games to make up against Salpointe and Sunnyside, the rest of the region is at the midway point. Rincon grabbed wins against Buena and Mountain View the first time around and will look to avenge close losses to the other four Southern Region teams. Tonight they try to get back on the winning track against the visiting Mountain Lions. The Rangers need to avoid the scoring droughts that have plagued them recently. Luckily for Rincon, Juan Pablo Favela is starting to look back to form after last season's injury. He will need to continue to improve through the last 7 games and get some help from his supporting cast. The Rangers could be a dangerous team come February; however, they need not dig themselves a deeper hole before that time

5A Southern Region

Team	Region	Overall
Ironwood Ridge	6-0	16-5
Salpointe	4-1	14-5
Tucson	2-2	9-6
Sunnyside	2-3	9-6
Rincon	2-4	12-9
Buena	2-4	11-10
Mountain View	1-5	10-9

Ridge 55 Rincon 52 OT

The Rangers controlled Tuesday's contest against the visiting Nighthawks for about 22 minutes. Josh Smith did a great job against leading scorer Matt Walter. Jan Maehlen was contained and outside weapon Tyler D'amore didn't get hot from three point land. Juan Pablo Favela scored seemingly at will and Rincon led by 13 points. Then for the second straight game, the Rangers ran out of gas. In the final ten minutes of regulation, they managed only eight points while giving up 21. In overtime, they did no better, scoring only one point in four minutes. It was a very disappointing loss for a Rincon team that needs some wins to help their power points standing (see below). Each win equates to 5 power points and the Rangers are now dangerously close to falling out of the top 16
